Student Workshop

The Jane Ross Tutoring® student workshop includes six hours of instruction that focuses on the content of the four sections of the ACT as well as helpful testing strategies.

The full-day training includes:

- Effective strategies for using the allotted time for each section.
- A focused review of math skills from middle school, Algebra 1 and 2, and Geometry.
- A review of the most commonly tested grammar skills.
- Reading comprehension skills needed for ACT reading passages.

Instructors use authentic materials during the training. We produce our own curriculum, which is delivered to students as a workbook that includes an actual ACT test. The workbook includes guided notes that accompany the presentation, and students complete a portion of the practice test during the session. At the end of the training, students keep all the materials, which they may use for additional practice and review.

Professional Development for Teachers

The Jane Ross Tutoring® professional development sessions show teachers ways to integrate ACT prep into their regular classroom instruction and assessment to improve students' scores.

This workshop works best if teachers could be separated by content area. Usually, schools create a schedule where one session includes math and science teachers (and others whose content area would relate) and then a separate session includes English and social studies teachers (and others whose content area would relate). The Jane Ross trainer then works through the math and science sections of the test with one group and the English and reading sections with the other group. It's best to set aside three hours per session for a total of six hours of training. School leaders can provide a full day of their own PD at the same time; we would simply work with the assigned groups in half-day sessions and then switch groups after lunch.

These sessions provide teachers with a basic overview of the test structure and scoring. Teachers will also learn content-specific strategies to share with students and how to incorporate ACT-style prep into instruction. Participants will analyze questions and data from previous test administrations.
